Robotic Process Automation (RPA)

Leverage RPA technology to eliminate repetitive work, save money and scale your organization – now available at SMB budgets!

What is Robotic Process Automation?

Robotic Process Automation (RPA) is customized software that replicates the tasks a human does on a computer. RPA integrates seamlessly across all software applications and legacy systems, online and offline, with or without human interaction.

Imagine if you could literally hire a robot to handle those highly repetitive, tedious, complicated tasks that keep your business flowing. Well....with Techromatic, now you can!

Why Do I Need RPA for my Business?

Research shows that most employees spend a significant portion of their day doing "busy work." Highly skilled and highly paid team members should be able to focus on tasks that have a more valuable impact on the growth and success of your company.

Our customized robots will take on the grunt work – logging into applications, filling out forms, copying and pasting, uploading and downloading documents, reading and processing documents and images, scraping data from the web, transferring data from one application to another, generating emails, creating reports, reconciling finances and more.
